Ed's Story or How I started slingin' hash

(and other good stuff...)

Those of you fortunate enough to have passed through Taloca, Illinois, during the '50s and '60s probably remember Lill's Homesick Diner on Highway 50. The Homesick knew how to feed you: real beef burgers (no soybeans), homemade chili, fresh-baked bread and pies, and plenty of good, hot coffee. And Lill knew how to treat people right -

Eat and get out, that was her motto. The Homesick is where I learned the short order business. And while I'm no Lill, I think I've made this place something she'd be proud of. So, as Lill always said,

"If you like what you're eatin', order more. If you don't - there's the door."

Thanks for coming, Ed
